"This edition seems to have been prepared by the author himself. It contains more material than the English edition, the illustrations are different, and the three maps are entirely new."

This edition contains the additional thirty-page outline sketch or history of the Oregon Territory and its Missions; then come the twenty-eight long letters from Father de Smet, and four letters from Fathers Point, Joset, Bolduc, and Accolti, concerning various travels in Oregon and the adjoining districts, the manners and customs of the various Indian tribes, and the progress of the Missions there; and at the end the "Lord's Prayer" in the Indian languages of the Flatheads, Flat-bow, Assiniboin, Cree, Black-foot, and Potawotomie Indians; list of Rocky Mountain Plants, various Vocabularies, and an account of the origin of the Americans.

"The contents of the present volume, from the pen of the celebrated Missionary of the Rocky Mountains, will be found, by the reader, to be fraught with extraordinary interest. The manners and customs of the North American Indians—their traditions, their superstitions, their docility in admitting the Maxims of the Gospel, and the edifying lives of thousands who have received the grace of baptism and instruction, are described with a freshness of colouring, and an exactness of detail, that will render them invaluable not only to our own times, but especially to posterity. He travels through those vast and unexplored deserts, not merely as a missionary, filled with the zeal which characterized the apostles of the primitive Society to which he belongs, but with the eye of a poet, and an imagination glowing with a bright yet calm enthusiasm. Hence the exquisite descriptions of scenery, of incidents, of events; descriptions which breathe the spirit of a mind imbued with the loftiest conceptions of nature, and chastened with the sacred influence of faith."
